

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF INDIAN STUDIES

Mughal Persian Language Program

Lucknow, India | Summer 2019

Interested in the Mughal Empire, Comparative Empire Studies, and the larger Persianate World encompassing Persia, the Ottoman Empire, Afghanistan and Central Asia?

The AIIS Mughal Persian summer program is designed for students and scholars interested in reading texts from the 16th through 18th centuries.

Prerequisites: Applicants are required to have the equivalent of one year (or intensive summer program) of Persian, Urdu, or Arabic by the time the program starts.

Funding: Summer students should apply for FLAS or other funding if available at their institutions to cover the costs of the program. AIIS has some funding available for summer students who cannot procure their own funding, allocated on the basis of the language committee's ranking of the applicants.

New in Summer 2019: AIIS is holding a special Mughal Persian archival workshop for students and scholars—including scholars from local Indian educational institutions, libraries and archives—at the conclusion of the program.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: DECEMBER 31, 2018

APPLY NOW: www.indiastudies.org

AIIS Language Programs offer intensive, immersive instruction in over 15 South Asian languages. Visit our website to see the full list of offerings for summer, semester, and academic year programs.