The AIIS Digital India Learning (DIL) invites applications for three two-month student fellowships for the summer of 2024 to carry out original projects using the resources of the two AIIS research centers in India (Archives and Research Center for Ethnomusicology (ARCE) and Center for Art and Archaeology (CA&A)) and resulting in the creation of a digital exhibition, digital curriculum, or other creative products intended for varied audiences. The goal of this opportunity is to: foster the digital production and dissemination of knowledge about India; promote the creation and use of digital resources and media for the study of India; and promote digital collaboration.

The fellowship includes a round-trip ticket to India, two months of lodging and board in Gurugram, Haryana, India in the summer of 2024 (approximately June 15-August 15, 2024) and a stipend. The fellowship awards will also cover the cost of obtaining a visa.

To apply, applicants should send a single pdf, including the following items, to aiis@uchicago.edu by March 1, 2024:

1) a cover sheet with their name, institution, address, email and phone number and the title of the project they have chosen
2) a two-page (maximum) CV
3) a project statement

Applicants will be evaluated according to the creativity and rationale for participating in their selected project; innovation of their plan for presenting their projects in a virtual environment for varied audiences; whether the applicant’s background (coursework and prior internship or work experience) has prepared them for their selected project; clarity of the statement on how this opportunity will be of value for the applicant’s professional and academic trajectory. Selection of applicants and notifications will be done by April 1, 2024.

More Information and application instructions indiastudies.org/summer-student-fellowships-for-digital-projects/

Deadline
March 1, 2024